FINAL DECREE.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT, }
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS, }
SOUTHERN DIVISION.

Monday, April 17, 1899.

Present: Honorable Christian C. Kohlsaatt, District Judge.

National Biscuit Company, }
vs. }
Albert V. Thomas and Robert D. }
Clarke.

This day came the complainant, by Charles K. Offield, of the firm of Offield, Towle & Linthicum, its solicitors, and of counsel, and the defendants by James H. Peirce, of the firm of Messrs. Peirce & Fisher, their solicitors and of counsel, and thereupon the following proceedings were had:

This cause coming on to be heard upon final hearing, upon the pleadings and affidavits filed herein, and the respective counsel being heard for the respective parties thereon, and being duly considered, it is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed as follows:

First: That the said word or name "Uneeda" is a good and valid Trade-mark or trade name for biscuits, crackers and other bakery products, and that the title thereof, and the entire and exclusive right in the use of the same as a Trade-mark or trade name, vest in said complainant.

Second: That the package and wrapper thereof with the border and parallelogram arrangement upon the four longitudinal sides thereof, and the printed matter in relation thereto, as shown by "Complainant's Exhibit, Complainant's Package, Trade-mark and Wrapper," are the equitable property, wrapper and label arrangement of the complainant herein, in connection with the manufacture and sale of biscuits, crackers and other bakery products.

Third: That the defendants have infringed upon and violated the rights of the complainant by the use of the name or word "Uwanta" as a close imitation and simulation of the Trade-mark or name "Uneeda" of the complainant, and have closely imitated and simulated the package of the said complainant as to size and form, and the wrapper thereof as to arrangement of border, respective parallelograms and printed matter, in relation thereto, in the sale of the biscuits and crackers of said defendants.

Fourth: That the said defendants, Albert V. Thomas and Robert D. Clarke, and each of them, and their respective agents, servants and employes, and each of them, be and hereby are perpetually enjoined from affixing, using or causing or permitting to be used or affixed to or upon any biscuits, crackers or other bakery products or packages manufactured by them, or bought or procured or sold by them or for them or either of them, or in which they are in any manner interested, the word "Uneeda" or the word "Uwanta" or any word or synonym thereof or any word calculated to deceive or mislead, or any word colorably different therefrom, and from affixing to any package, biscuit, crackers or bakery products any wrapper, label or other covering having thereon a border and parallelogram arrangement and accompanying letters in substantial imitation of the wrapper, label and package or box arrangement of the said complainant, and only colorably different therefrom, or from using any box or package construction, wrapper or label arrangement thereof, in the sale of biscuits, crackers and other bakery products, so contrived as to lead to the belief or to be calculated to lead to the belief, or to be liable to cause the public to believe, that the biscuits or crackers contained in such box, packages, wrappers or other covering, was manufactured or sold by the complainant.

Fifth: It further appearing to the court that the said parties have agreed to settle the question of damages to the complainant and profits to the defendants out of court, within thirty days hereafter, no reference to Master for an accounting is at this time made.

Sixth: It is further ordered, adjudged and decreed, that the defendants pay the costs herein to be taxed, and that complainant have execution therefor.

NORTHERN DIVISION. } ss.

I, S. W. Burnham, Clerk of the Circuit Court of the United States, for said Northern District of Illinois, do hereby certify the above and foregoing to be a true and correct copy of the Decree entered of record in said Court on the 17th day of April, A. D. 1899, in the cause wherein National Biscuit Company, is the complainant and Albert V. Thomas and Robert D. Clarke are the defendants, as the same appears from the original thereof now remaining in my custody and control.

UNFAIR COMPETITION—PRELIMINARY INJUNCTION.

“Uneeda,” as applied to a biscuit, is a proper trade-mark; and the proprietor is entitled to an injunction against the use of “Iwanta” by another manufacturer as the name of a similar biscuit put up and sold to the trade in packages so similar as to be calculated to deceive consumers.¹

Motion for preliminary injunction against sellers of alleged infringing goods; the action being defended by the Ward-Mackey Company, of Pittsburg, Pa., makers of the same.

Charles K. Offield, for the motion.

Arthur v. Briesen, opposed.

LACOMBE, Circuit Judge. This case is too plain to waste many words over it,—the principles of trade-mark infringement and of unfair competition have been so often discussed in this circuit. That “Uneeda,” as applied to biscuit, is a proper trade-mark, and that complainant is entitled to its exclusive use in that connection, is hardly disputed. That it has been most extensively advertised, presumably at great expense, is matter of common knowledge, and is asserted in the moving papers. Defendants present the usual voluminous bundle of affidavits by persons in the trade to the effect that in their opinion no one is likely to mistake defendants’ biscuit for complainant’s. As has been often pointed out before, it makes no difference that dealers in the article are not deceived. No one expects that they will be. It is the probable experience of the consumer that the court considers. Here, too, we have the manufacturer of the articles complained of, who explains, as usual, that, in adopting a trade name by which to identify his own product, he has been most "careful not to trespass on any rights" of complainant, and that "after considerable thought" he selected a name which should make the difference between his goods and complainant's "distinct and plain, so that there could be no possibility of mistake." It is a curious fact that so many manufacturers of proprietary articles, when confronted with some well-advertised trade name or mark of a rival manufacturer, seem to find their inventive faculties so singularly unresponsive to their efforts to differentiate. Thus, in one case, with the word "Cottolene" before him, defendant's best effort at differentiation resulted in "Cottoleo," and "Mongolia" seemed to another defendant entirely unlike "Mangolia." The manufacturer of the articles which defendants in the case at bar are selling seems to have had no better luck, for, with the word "Uneeda" before him, his device to avoid confusion was the adoption of the word "Iwanta." The incessant use of the personal pronouns in daily speech has associated in every one's mind the sounds represented by the letters "I" and "U"; the two words are of precisely the same length; both end with the same letter, "A"; and both express the same idea, namely, that the prospective purchaser's personal comfort would be promoted by the acquisition of a biscuit. There are, as also is usual, a number of minor differences between the forms and the dress of the two packages, which are expatiated upon in the affidavits and the brief; but no one can look at both packages without perceiving that there are strong resemblances, which could easily have been avoided had there been an honest effort to give defendants' goods a distinctive dress. Both name and dress are clearly calculated to mislead, and the statements that both were adopted with an eye single to differentiation strain the credulity of the court beyond the breaking point. Complainant may take a preliminary injunction against the use of the trade-name "Iwanta," and of the present style of package; also against similar colorable imitations of complainant's trade-name, "Uneeda," and of his style of package.

1. UNFAIR COMPETITION—IMITATION OF PACKAGES.

While a defendant may have the right to use every one of the elements entering into complainant's trade-mark and packages if used separately, yet his use of the same in combination, for the evident purpose of imitating in appearance complainant's packages, constitutes unfair competition.

In Equity. On motion for preliminary injunction. For opinion on appeal, see 127 Fed., 116.

Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Offield, Towle & Linthicum, and Earl D. Babst, for complainant.

Banning & Banning and Benjamin C. Starr, for defendants.

WANTY, District Judge. In this case a motion for a preliminary injunction has heretofore been filed, and was argued the other day, and I have come to a conclusion in the matter. The bill in this case was filed to restrain the defendants from infringing the complainant's trade-mark and to restrain fraudulent competition in imitating the complainant's packages or cartons in size and color and general appearance. The defendants claim that they have the right to use the straight lines and curves in a trade-mark, that they have the right to use the word "seal," that they have the right to use white lines on a red background, and that they have the right to use cartons of a particular size, and that they have the right to use the different colors which they have adopted for their packages, and that the complainant cannot appropriate any of these things so as to preclude others from their use. All of these claims of the defendants are true, but it is apparent, under the showing here, that the defendants deliberately sat down and made their packages as like in general appearance to the complainant's packages as would be necessary to catch the customer and escape the courts. They had the right to use the background used by the complainant, they had the right to use clipped corners and the word "Seal," they had the right to use any color that the complainant used for cartons, and they had the right to use packages of the size used by the complainant. But when they used all these things in combination, the object is too apparent to admit of argument. The defendants put up a package which they say is exactly the size of complainant's package, because it contains the same quantity of crackers, which, if put up in a convenient manner, necessarily compels the use of the same-size package. But this does not explain why on the largest-size package the defendants have the exact shade of red used by complainant, and have the white lettering of substantially the same type, and on the next-size package, they have blue, like complainant's. Why did they not use blue on the largest-size package and red on the smaller? No one can read the pleadings and affidavits in this case and escape the conclusion that the defendants are endeavoring to appropriate the trade of the complainant by imitating, in its general effect, its seal and packages, and to escape the legal effect of such an attempt by making dissimilar minor details. The fraud is apparent, and the motion for a preliminary injunction will be granted.

¶1 Unfair competition, see notes to Scheuer v. Muller, 20 C. C. A. 165; Lare v. Harper & Bros., 30 C. C. A. 376.

1. That the said Complainant, the National Biscuit Company's "In-er-seal" Trade Mark is a good and valid Trade

2. That the said defendants have infringed upon and violated said complainant's "In-er-seal" Trade Mark, as alleged in said bill of complaint, by putting up and selling bakery products in cartons or packages like those marked "Complainant's Exhibits Defendants' Infringing Packages Nos. 1, 2 and 3" and "Defendants' Exhibits Nos. 13, 14 and 15."

b. From putting up and selling, or offering for sale, the particular forms of cartons or packages referred to in the bill of complaint, and identified therein as "Complainant's Exhibit Defendants' Infringing Packages Nos. 1, 2 and 3," or any other form of packages or cartons, respectively, which shall, by reason of the collocation of size, shape, colors, lettering, spacing and ornamentation, present a general appearance as closely resembling complainant's several exhibits respectively, referred to in the bill of complaint and marked as Complainant's Exhibits—as do the said defendants' respectively infringing packages Nos. 1, 2 and 3, but this shall not be construed as restraining defendants from selling packages or cartons of the size, weight and shape of complainant's packages, nor from using the respective colors as wrappers for such packages, provided such packages are so differentiated in general appearance from said complainant's respective packages that they are not calculated to deceive the ultimate ordinary purchaser.

5. That the said complainant has a right to recover any and all profits accruing to the said defendants from the unlawful violation and infringement of said complainant's rights, and to recover all damages suffered by and accruing to said complainant by reason of the commitment of said unlawful and infringing acts, together with the costs herein to be taxed, and that the same may be referred to Irvin Belford, he being a suitable person as Master of this Court, and approved by the parties to take, state and report an account of such damages and profits under and in accordance with this decree, and that upon such accounting the testimony heretofore taken by either party in this case, may be read by either party, and referred to and considered by said master.

No. 1232.

1 TRADE MARK—PROTECTION—INFRINGEMENT.

The right of the owner of a trade-mark to be protected in the exclusive use thereof is not dependent on the federal statute authorizing registration.

2. SAME—NATURE OF RELIEF—UNFAIR DOMESTIC COMPETITION.

Where the ground for relief in a suit for infringement of a trade-mark was unfair competition in domestic commerce, and the cause of action alleged was an imitation of plaintiff's trade-mark on cartons used in local trade, and there was no allegation that complainant's foreign trade was injured by the acts complained of, the fact that the trade-mark was registered, and that complainant was entitled to protection under the federal statute with regard to foreign commerce, was immaterial.

3. SAME—EVIDENCE.

Complainant's "In-er-seal" trade-mark, as known to the public, was printed in white letters on a vivid red back-ground of a peculiar shade, and applied to the ends of cracker and biscuit cartons, in which complainant's goods were packed for sale. Shortly thereafter defendant conceived a trade-mark with the words "Factory Seal" printed on the same colored labels, which it applied to the ends of similar packages of its biscuits. At the time defendant adopted this trade-mark it knew complainant's crackers were the only ones sold with the red seal on the end of the cartons, and that its trade-marks were liable to deceive careless purchasers. Held, that defendant's trade-mark, when so printed and used, was an infringement on complainant's trade-mark, and should be enjoined.

Appeal from the Circuit Court of the United States for the Northern District of Ohio. For opinion below, see 127 Fed., 160.

Thomas A. Banning, Ephraim Banning, and Benjamin C. Starr, for appellants.

Squire, Sanders & Dempsey, Earl D. Babst, and Offield, Towle & Linthicum, for appellee.

Before LURTON and RICHARDS, Circuit Judges, and THOMPSON, District Judge.

RICHARDS, Circuit Judge. In March, 1900, the complainant below, the National Biscuit Company, was engaged in the manufacture and sale of bakery products, consisting of biscuits, crackers, etc. It owned and operated some 75 plants, located in the leading cities of the United States, the products of which were put out in packages or cartons under different factory names, indicating their character and origin. For the purpose of identifying all these products, making them known to the public, and guarantying their authenticity, it adopted an arbitrary design or symbol known as the "In-er-seal" trade-mark for use on its cartons, and at a cost of hundreds of thousands of dollars advertised it throughout this country and the world as the mark by which its goods might be recognized. Except for the use of some green and orange labels, which were soon abandoned, the "In-er Seal" trade-mark was printed in white letters upon a vivid red label with clipped corners, and applied to the ends of the cartons. The trade-mark was registered, the application being filed May 12, 1900. In the latter part of August, 1900, the defendant below, the Ohio Baking Company, was engaged at Cleveland, Ohio, in making and selling bread and cakes. It had been so engaged for 17 years. At this time, having decided to enter upon the biscuit and cracker business, it employed one Miles, a former employe of the National Biscuit Company, and gave him charge as manager of the cracker department about to be established. Within three or four weeks afterwards it began to place its biscuits and crackers upon the market, packed in cartons of substantially the same size as those used by the National Biscuit Company, and in some cases of the same color, style of ornamentation, and general appearance, all having on the ends, printed in white letters upon red labels with clipped corners, a fanciful figure, known as the “Factory Seal” trade-mark, which the Ohio Baking Company, upon entering the cracker business, for the first time adopted and began to use. This trade-mark was registered, the application being filed October 9, 1900. For the purpose of comparison, the two trade-marks are shown in the following illustrations, the vivid red background being designated by the black background:

The original suit was brought by the National Biscuit Company, to restrain the Ohio Baking Company and its officers from advertising or selling its goods in any package having on it the "In-er-seal" trade-mark or any imitation thereof, or in any package dressed in imitation of one used by the National Biscuit Company, and for an accounting of the profits made by such unfair competition.

On an application for a preliminary injunction, Judge Wanty restrained the defendant below, first, from using the "In-er-seal" trade-mark upon cartons containing its bakery products, as shown in certain exhibits, or advertising or selling its bakery products in cartons containing thereon the "In-er-seal" trade-mark or any imitation thereof; and, second, from putting up and selling or offering for sale the particular cartons shown in certain exhibits, or any other cartons resembling the complainant's cartons as closely as they do. But this was not to be construed as restraining the defendant from selling cartons of the size, weight, and shape of the complainant's, nor from using the respective colors as wrappers, provided they were so differentiated in general appearance as not to be calculated to deceive the ultimate ordinary purchaser. There was an appeal from Judge Wanty's order, and this court reversed the portion respecting the use of the "In-er-seal" trade-mark or any imitation thereof, but affirmed the rest. Upon the return of the case to the Circuit Court, an application was made to Judge Severens for an attachment for contempt against the defendant below for putting out certain cartons in violation of the second part of Judge Wanty's order, but Judge Severens discharged the rule, holding that the cartons did not present a general appearance so closely resembling the complainant's exhibit mentioned in the restraining order as to come within its terms. Afterwards the case came on for hearing before the Circuit Court, Judge Wing sitting, upon the pleadings and proof, and a decree was rendered in favor of the complainant, holding: (1) That the "In-er-seal" trade-mark is a good and valid trade-mark. (2) That the defendants have infringed this trade-mark by putting up and selling bakery products in cartons like those shown in certain exhibits mentioned. (3) That the defendants have violated the complainant's equitable rights in putting up and selling its bakery products in cartons which present a general appearance closely resembling those of the complainant as shown in certain exhibits. (4) That the defendants be enjoined: (a) From imitating the "In-er-seal" trade-mark, or making, handling, or selling cartons of bakery products having thereon any imitation of the "In-er-seal" trade-mark, calculated to mislead or deceive, like those shown in certain exhibits; "but this shall not be construed as restraining defendants from selling cartons or packages of bakery products with their asserted trade-mark thereon, provided such trade-mark is so differentiated in general appearance and application from said complainant's trade-mark that it is not calculated to deceive the ultimate ordinary purchaser." (b) From putting up and selling or offering for sale the particular forms of cartons shown in certain exhibits, or cartons resembling them so closely as to mislead or deceive; but this shall not be construed as restraining the defendants from selling cartons of the size, weight, and shape of the complainant's, but so differentiated in general appearance as not to be calculated to deceive the ordinary purchaser. (5) That the complainant has the right to recover all profits accruing from the violation and infringement of its rights, and that the case be referred to a master to take and report an account of the damages and profits. From this decree an appeal has been taken to this court.

The right to be protected in the exclusive use of a trade-mark is not dependent on the federal statute authorizing the registration of certain trade-marks. It has been long recognized by the common law and enforced by the chancery courts of England and this country. The use of a trade-mark is to distinguish one's goods. No man has a right to use or imitate the trade-mark of another, and thus represent his goods as the goods of another. However broad the field of competition, it does not include the use of a rival's trade-mark, either directly or covertly, for the purpose of deceiving the public, and marketing his own goods as those of his rival. The one question of fact in this case is whether the "Factory Seal" trade mark, when printed in white letters upon a red label with clipped corners, and applied to the ends of cartons containing bakery products, bears such a resemblance to the "In-er-seal" trade-mark, when similarly applied, as to deceive the ordinary purchaser, and lead him to believe he is purchasing the goods of the National Biscuit Company, when in fact he is getting the goods of the Ohio Baking Company. McLean v. Fleming, 96 U. S., 255, 24 L. Ed. 828; Manufacturing Co. v. Trainer, 101 U. S., 65, 25 L. Ed., 993; Coats v. Merrick Thread Co., 149 U. S., 562, 13 Sup. Ct., 966, 37 L. Ed., 847. We have made a careful inspection of the cartons and trade-marks of the respective companies, and are satisfied not only that the "Factory Seal" trade-mark as applied is calculated to mislead and deceive the ordinary purchaser, but that it was designed, adopted, and used for that purpose. Its use was a part of the "cracker campaign" planned in advance. The National Biscuit Company's crackers were the only ones with a red seal on the end of the cartons. The defendants below knew this. And they knew also that crackers are sold for the most part over the counter to careless buyers, who are not apt to examine the carton carefully, but likely to carry in mind some one distinguishing feature, such as a red seal on the ends. The crackers of the National Biscuit Company are put out under many names. Thus the plant at Toledo was called the Worts-Kirk-Bigelow plant, one at Chicago the Kennedy, another the Bremner, and so on. The name of the factory would mean nothing, the presence of the red seal everything to the servant girl or child sent to the grocery for a box of "In-er-seal" crackers. The careless purchaser asking for a box "of those red seal crackers" would take the "Factory Seal" goods, thinking he was getting the "In-er-seal" goods.

But it is insisted that this is a suit on a registered trade-mark, and that a trade-mark cannot be extended beyond the limits fixed in the registration. This is not, however, a suit on a registered trade-mark. Neither the allegations nor the proof would entitle the complainant to relief under the federal act. Warner v. The Searle & Hereth Co., 191 U. S., 195, 24 Sup. Ct., 79, 48 L. Ed.—. There is no evidence showing that the trade of the National Biscuit Company with foreign countries was injured by the acts complained of. The ground of the relief sought is unfair competition in domestic commerce—the fraudulent imitation of the complainant's trade-mark and cartons for use in local trade. Conceding, as Mr. Justice Fuller says, in Watch Co. v. Watch Case Co., 179 U. S., 666, 674, 21 Sup. Ct., 270, 45 L. Ed., 365, that in this class of cases "such circumstances must be made out as will show wrongful intent in fact, or justify that inference from the inevitable consequences of the act complained of," they are present in ample measure in the record. The trade-mark which the court is asked to protect is therefore, so far as this suit is concerned, a common-law trade-mark, and its limits are to be determined by its application and use. As Mr. Justice Shiras said in Kohler Mfg. Co. v. Beeshore, 59 Fed., 572, 575, 8 C. C. A., 215, 218: "We are not willing to affirm the proposition that the registration in the Patent Office of a certain name or phrase as a trade-mark * * * will in all cases prevent or estop the owner from adopting and using another name or phrase as a trade-mark." The legal effect of the registry of a trade-mark being restricted to foreign commerce and that with the Indian tribes, it would seem that as to domestic commerce a person might adopt and use a different trade-mark than that registered. Now, the trade-mark actually used—the "In-er-seal" trade-mark, as known to the public—was printed in white letters upon a vivid red background of a peculiar shade. Before the defendants began to place their goods upon the market, this vivid red color had become associated with the "In-er-seal" trade-mark. The defendants below knew this when they put their "Factory Seal" trade-mark upon the vivid red background of precisely the same shade. While it is true no one has the right to monopolize a particular color, yet the courts have repeatedly held that a person may be restrained from using a particular color, in combination with other things, to mislead the public, and market his goods as those of another. Garrett v. T. H. Garrett & Co., 78 Fed., 472, 24 C. C. A., 173; Fairbank Co. v. Bell Mfg. Co., 77 Fed., 869, 23 C. C. A., 554; Hires Co. v. Consumers' Co., 100 Fed. 809, 41 C. C. A., 71; Morgan Co. v. Whittier Co. (C. C.), 118 Fed., 657; Cohen v. Delavina (C. C.), 104 Fed. 946. We are satisfied that the "Factory Seal" trade-mark, when printed on the vivid red background and applied to the ends of a cracker or biscuit carton, is an infringement of the "In-er-seal" trade-mark, and should be enjoined.

It is submitted that the decree of the Circuit Court enjoining the use of any imitation of the "In-er-seal" trade-mark is inconsistent with the order of this court reversing the first part of Judge Wanty's restraining order respecting the trade-mark. But Judge Wanty's order restrained the use of the "Factory Seal" trade-mark in any manner whatsoever in connection with biscuit or cracker cartons, while the decree of the Circuit Court provides that it may be used when so differentiated in general appearance and application from the "In-er-seal" trade-mark as not to be calculated to deceive the ultimate ordinary purchaser. So that in affirming this decree, it is not necessary to prohibit the use in any manner whatsoever of the "Factory Seal" trade-mark, but only its use in a way calculated to mislead and deceive.

But, however this may be, the case is now before us upon the merits, which we have carefully examined, and we are satisfied that the manner in which the "Factory Seal" trade-mark has been used is calculated to mislead and deceive, and constitutes an infringement of the "In-er-seal" trade-mark.

The judgment of the Circuit Court is affirmed.

The Ohio Baking Company, Stephen C. Morris and George E. Collings, Petitioners,	} On Petition for Writ of Certiorari directed to the United States Cir- cuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.
vs. National Biscuit Company, Respondent.

PETITION FOR WRIT OF CERTIORARI.

To the Honorable the Chief Justice and Associate Justices of the Supreme Court of the United States:

The petition of the Ohio Baking Company, a corporation organized and existing under and by virtue of the laws of the State of Ohio, and Stephen C. Morris, treasurer and general manager of said company, and George E. Collings, president of said company, respectfully represents and shows unto your Honors as follows:

1. That about the 1st day of March, 1900, the National Biscuit Company adopted what is generally known as its "Iner Seal" trade-mark—being the misspelled words "inner seal," indicating that the package was sealed on the inside, and a purely arbitrary figure or design—for use on various kinds of bakery products including biscuits, crackers, wafers, cakes, bread, snaps, jumbles, etc. The trade-mark has usually been printed on seals or labels which have been applied to the boxes, packages or cartons in which the goods were put up for the market. This seal or label has usually been applied to the end of the carton or package. The trade-mark has been printed on orange, green or red colored seals or labels. The trade-mark printed on one of the red end labels or seals appears as follows:

2. That in the bill of complaint charging infringement of the complainant's "Iner Seal" trade-mark, in the fourth paragraph of the bill, the characteristics, peculiarities, and distinguishing things and features of such "Iner Seal" trade-mark are stated and alleged to be the following:

"An oval-shaped figure separated centrally and horizontally in the direction of its greatest length by a bar, from which there rises centrally and at right angles thereto a perpendicular bar, which near its upper end is intersected by double horizontal cross-bars, thus forming what might be designated as a "double-T-shaped" figure or cross tree, while within said oval-shaped section and above the horizontal dividing-bar and to the left of the perpendicular intersecting bar appear the letters "I N" and on the opposite side of said perpendicular intersecting bar and above said horizontal division-bar appear the letters "E R" the lower section of said oval-shaped figure having therein the word "Seal."

3. That the National Biscuit Company, registered its

"Iner Seal" trade-mark in the Patent Office, the certificate of registry being dated September 18, 1900, and numbered 35,108, on an application filed May 12, 1900. The certificate of registry of such trade-mark will be found in the Record, following page 160. In the specification of such registration, which was sworn to, the National Biscuit Company stated the things in which the trade-mark consisted as follows:

"Said trade-mark consists of an arbitrarily selected design or symbol representing an oval-shaped figure separated centrally and horizontally in the direction of its greatest length by a bar, from which there rises centrally and at right angles thereto a perpendicular bar, which near its upper end is intersected by double horizontal cross-bars, thus forming what might be designated as a "double-T-shaped" figure or cross-tree, while within said oval-shaped section and above the horizontal dividing-bar and to the left of the perpendicular intersection bar appear the letters "I N" and on the opposite side of said perpendicular intersecting bar and above said horizontal division-bar appear the letters "E R" the lower section of said oval-shaped figure having therein the word "Seal."

And afterwards in said specification, after stating that the trade mark was not confined to the size of the end labels, nor to their application to the end of the package, nor to the shape of the label, nor to the size of the letters and figures, nor to the color of the letters and figures, nor to the color of the label or background, nor to the style of the letters, nor to the color of the border of the figure or the bars, nor to a white color for the letters or bars, the National Biscuit Company declared the real and essential features of the trade-mark in the following words:

"The essential and paramount feature of said trade-mark consisting of an oval-shaped figure divided centrally and horizontally in the direction of its greatest length by a bar from which extends a perpendicular bar which is intersected near its upper end by two horizontal cross-bars, while within said oval-shaped figure and above said central horizontal bar appear the letters "I N" and "E R," while below said horizontal dividing-bar appears the word "Seal." "

4. That about the 1st day of August, 1900, your petitioner, the Ohio Baking Company, adopted what is generally known as its "Factory Seal" trade-mark, consisting of the monogram word "Ohio," being the designating or localizing word of its corporate name. The words "factory seal" indicate that the package was filled and sealed at the factory so as to place responsibility in case the goods are found defective. The trade-mark has usually been applied to cartons or packages containing bakery products by printing it upon the end seals. The foundation color of these end seals or labels from the commencement has been red. A sample of such end seals is submitted as follows:

5. That your petitioner, the Ohio Baking Company, also registered its "Factory Seal" trade-mark in the Patent Office, the certificate of registry being dated December 18, 1900, and numbered 35,597, on an application filed October 9, 1900. The certificate of registry of such trade-mark will be found in the back of the record.

6. That in December, 1900, the National Biscuit Company filed its bill of complaint in the United States Circuit Court for the Northern District of Ohio, Eastern Division, charging your petitioners with infringement of its "Iner Seal" trade-mark, applied to packages and cartons of crackers and bakery products, by the use, by the Ohio Baking Company, of its "Factory Seal" trade-mark, the monogram word "Ohio," as shown in the sample above.

7. That in January, 1901, a preliminary injunction order was entered by his Honor, Judge George P. Wauty, restraining your petitioners, first, "from applying or using complainant's 'Iner Seal' trade-mark, in any manner whatsoever, upon or in connection with bakery products," as shown in certain infringing packages 1, 2 and 3; and, secondly, from putting up or selling cartons or packages like the packages 1, 2 and 3 or others "which shall, by reason of the collocation of size, shape, colors, lettering, spacing and ornamentation, present a general appearance closely resembling complainant's several exhibits respectively" as did the packages 1, 2 and 3, but at the same time the order provided that "this shall not be construed as restraining defendants from selling packages or cartons of the size, weight and shape of complainant's packages, nor from using the respective colors as wrappers for such packages, provided such packages are so differentiated in general appearance from said complainant's respective packages that they are not calculated to deceive the ultimate ordinary purchaser." (Record, 141-2.)

8. That an appeal was taken from the injunction order entered by Judge Wanty on an assignment of errors, appearing at page 143 of the record, which appeal was argued in the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit in due course, resulting in an order by said Court of Appeals reversing the decree of Judge Wanty, so far as the infringement of the trade-mark was concerned, but affirming his decision so far as simulating complainant's wrappers was concerned. In accordance with such order, a mandate was issued and filed in the court below on the 24th day of June, 1901, as and for its judgment in the case. (Record, 147.)

9. That from the entry of the order of injunction by Judge Wanty until the 24th day of June, 1901, when the mandate was filed in the court below, your petitioner, the Ohio Baking Company, discontinued the use of its end seals containing its trade-mark—the monogram word “Ohio”—but when the mandate was filed on the 24th of June, 1901, it again began to use the same trade-mark—the monogram word “Ohio”—on its end labels precisely the same in every respect as it had used them before the decision of Judge Wanty; but it used such end labels and trade-marks on packages differing in the coloring and ornamentation of their wrappers from the original packages 1, 2 and 3, which had been enjoined. This was the only change made—the change in the wrappers.

10. That thereupon the National Biscuit Company moved before his Honor Judge Henry F. Severens, who was one of the judges who had heard and decided the case in the Court of Appeals, to have your petitioners attached for contempt of court; and the charge and denial of contempt were argued before him, and on the 24th day of August, 1901, an order was entered by him discharging the rule to show cause, etc. The opinion of Judge Severens will be found at page 149 of the Record, and the order entered under such opinion will be found at page 150.

11. That thereupon proof for final hearing was taken by the parties respectively and the cause brought on for argument before his Honor Judge Francis J. Wing, on the 27th day of March, 1903. Judge Wing ordered a decree to be entered against your petitioners both as to the infringement of the trade-mark and as to the simulation of the wrappers of the cartons or packages. This decree was entered on the 22nd day of May, 1903, and will be found beginning at page 153 of the Record. A perpetual injunction was granted restraining your petitioners both as to the trade-mark and as to the simulation, and the case referred to a Master for an assessment of damages and profits.

12. That your petitioners thereupon prayed an appeal from the order and decision of Judge Wing to the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, in which court the appeal was duly argued, and on or about the 21st day of January, 1904, decided by said court, affirming Judge Wing's decision. (Rec. 170; 127 Fed. Rep., 116.)

13. That your petitioner attach hereto and submit herewith, as a part hereof, a certified printed copy of the record and the opinion of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals affirming the decision of Judge Wing, as the same are on file in the office of the clerk of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit.

14. That your petitioners have been aggrieved, and, as they believe, a miscarriage of justice has been caused in this case:

By the confusion into which the Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals appear to have fallen as to the law relating to trade-marks proper and the law governing unfair competition;

By the conclusion of the Court of Appeals that the suit was not founded on the complainant's registered trade-mark, and, therefore, not subject to the same rules of construction as govern registered trade-marks;

By giving to the complainant's "Iner Seal" trade-mark, both in the Circuit Court and in the Court of Appeals, a broader construction than the complainant's pleadings and registration justified, inasmuch as the bill of complaint and the registration both stated that it consisted in certain things and features;

By apparently considering that the bill was for unfair competition in trade rather than for infringement of a technical trade-mark, and yet enjoining your petitioners as for the infringement of a technical trade-mark;

By protecting the complainant in the use of its trade-mark when "printed in white letters upon a vivid red background of a peculiar shade," notwithstanding the statements of the complainant's registration that the color of the end labels or seals was immaterial;

By giving the complainant a practical monopoly of the color red as a background for end seals or labels;

By finding infringement of the "Iner Seal" trade-mark because the "Factory Seal" trade-mark was printed in white letters on a red background;

By protecting the complainant in the use of red for its end seals or labels notwithstanding it was not using red end seals exclusively at the time the Ohio Baking Company began to use red end seals or labels, but was using other colors as well;

By not holding that the complainant had disentitled itself to relief in equity for unfair competition in view of the evidence that it had adopted "substantially all colors" (Q. 24, Rec. 13) for the wrappers of its cartons or packages, thus seeking to monopolize all colors;

By holding that the "Factory Seal" trade-mark when printed on a red background and applied to the ends of cracker or biscuit cartons was an infringement of the "Iner Seal" trade-mark, thus attaching importance to the color of the background on the trade-mark branch of the case;

By attaching importance in the trade-mark branch of the case to the manner in which the "Factory Seal" trade-mark had been used;

By holding that there had been an improper simulation of the complainant's wrappers in view of the fact that the complainant, in order to match up the color and appearance of the defendant's packages 1, 2 and 3, held to be an improper simulation, was obliged to bring in packages from its Chicago and Toledo factories;

By holding that the "careless purchaser asking for a box 'of those red seal crackers' would take the 'Factory Seal' goods, thinking he was getting the 'Iner Seal' goods," thus making the action of a careless person instead of an ordinary purchaser determinative of the probability of deception;

By disregarding the fact that the red color, white figures and letters, clipped corners, size of seal, etc., were shown by the evidence to be matters of utility instead of mere fanciful or arbitrary features;

By applying the abstract principle "that as to domestic commerce a person might adopt and use a different trade-mark than that registered" to this case where the complainant has not adopted and has not used a "different" trade-mark, but identically the one registered; and

By affirming the decision of Judge Wing and in not reversing such decision.

Wherefore, your petitioners pray that this Honorable Court will take cognizance of the matters herein set forth and referred to and will grant unto your petitioners a writ of certiorari requiring said cause and the record thereof to be certified to it by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit, for its review and determination, pursuant to the provisions of the statute in such case made and provided, and that your petitioners may have such other and further relief in the premises as the nature and circumstances of their case may require.

And your petitioners will ever pray, etc.

OPINION.

IN THE UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,
NORTHERN DISTRICT OF ILLINOIS, } No. 26,043.
NORTHERN DIVISION.

KOHLSAAT, District Judge.

This matter comes on for hearing upon complainant's motion for a preliminary injunction restraining defendant corporation and the individual defendants from the use of the word "Dake" either alone or in connection with other words, upon or with reference to crackers or other bakery products.

I am of the opinion that the moving papers establish the property right in complainant to the use of the word "Dake" in connection with bakery products. Several defenses are interposed among which is that of abandonment. This I consider an affirmative defense, the burden of establishing which is upon defendants. The affidavits on this point are conflicting, but I deem the showing as to continued, though diminished, use by complainant, not overcome by defendants' affidavits.

The other defenses I do not think available.

A preliminary injunction may be entered, restraining defendants from using the word "Dake" in connection with bakery products, either alone or with prefixes or suffixes.

National Biscuit Company, Complainant.	} In Equity.
v.
Ira Swick, Defendant.

It is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the above parties, by their counsel, respectively, that an injunction may be entered in the above entitled cause against the defendant enjoining him from using the "Long Branch Biscuit Ribbon-Tying" design, the trade-mark or name "Zephyrette," and the trade-mark or name "Excelsior" or "Excelsior Butter Cracker" as prayed for in the bill of complaint in the above entitled cause, but without costs, profits or damages to which the complainant might be entitled for the past, the same having been mutually agreed upon and arranged.

It is further stipulated and agreed that the Ohio Baking Company, manufacturer of the cartons and packages sold by the defendant containing the above mentioned trade-marks, names or designs, shall cease and discontinue the use of each of the above trade-marks, names or designs on or before the First day of January, 1902, and in consideration thereof the complainant hereby releases and quit claims under said agreement and arrangement the said Ohio Baking Company from any and all claim for damages

(United States Circuit Court, Western Division New York. March 17, 1903.)

No. 134.

1. TRADE-MARKS—INFRINGEMENT.

A technical trade-mark, although not a facsimile of another, may be so used by a rival manufacturer as to imitate another's trade-mark, and, when such use actually deceives the public, it constitutes an infringement, against which a court of equity will grant relief.

2. SAME.

Complainant used and registered a trade-mark consisting of a square label or seal of a vivid red color, with the corners clipped, on which was an arbitrary combination of straight and curved lines in white, in which were printed the letters and word "In-er-seal." These labels were placed on the ends of complainant's cartons containing bakery products. Another manufacturer of the same class of goods registered as a trade-mark, and used in the same manner on its cartons, a label the same in size, shape, and color, having thereon a combination of white lines consisting of circles and straight lines with the words "Factory" and "Seal" printed thereon. The figure or symbol was not the same, but the general effect of the combination in a label used in the same place on a carton of the same size, shape, and color, together with a similar figure and the word "Seal," was to simulate the trade-mark of complainant, and to deceive purchasers. Held, that such use of defendant's trade-mark was an infringement of that of complainant, which entitled it to an injunction.

In Equity. Suit for infringement of trade-mark. On final hearing.

Moot, Sprague, Brownell & Marcy, Offield, Towle & Linthicum, and Earl D. Babst (Charles K. Offield, of counsel), for complainant.

Banning & Banning and Benjamin C. Starr, for defendant.

HAZEL, District Judge. The bill as originally filed, charges the defendant with unlawful infringement of a trade-mark and five trade-names used by complainant upon its various bakery products. A stipulation was filed before answer, admitting infringement by defendant as to five of the trade-names. Accordingly a decree was entered by consent of all parties restraining and enjoining the future use of such trade-names by the defendant. The alleged infringement by the defendant of complainant's "In-er-seal" registered trade-mark No. 35,108, dated September 18, 1900, is now the sole and specific subject for judicial determination.

COMPLAINANT'S TRADE-MARK.

DEFENDANT'S TRADE-MARK.

The defendant's infringement consists in the use of the registered trade-mark No. 35,597, dated December 18, 1900, issued to the Ohio Baking Company.

The proofs show that complainant manufactures various kinds of bakery products, which it places upon the market in special and distinct sizes of cartons or packages. Such cartons and packages widely vary in form and coloring, and are lettered on their sides in different size type. Upon the ends of each package or carton is applied the trade-mark printed upon a square label or seal, clipped at the corners, in clear white lines upon a vivid red background. The proofs further show that the trade-mark seal has since its adoption regularly been applied to the ends of the cartons in the manner described, except in a few instances. Complainant contends that its product has become well known to the general public because of the peculiarly quaint configuration of its trade-mark, which is uniquely displayed. The bill charges the adoption of the trade-mark on or about the month of March, 1899, and its subsequent registration in the office of the Commissioner of Patents May 12, 1900. It is specifically described as—

“An arbitrarily-selected design or symbol representing an oval-shaped figure separated centrally and horizontally in the direction of its greatest length by a bar, from which there rises centrally and at right angles thereto a perpendicular bar, which near its upper end is intersected by double horizontal cross-bars, thus forming what might be designated as a ‘double-T-shaped’ figure or cross-tree, while with said oval-shaped section and above the horizontal dividing-bar and to the left of the perpendicular intersecting bar appear the letters ‘I N,’ and on the opposite side of said perpendicular intersecting bar appear the letters ‘E R,’ the lower section of said oval-shaped figure having therein the word ‘Seal.’ ”

The specification describes and the drawings show the design as applied upon a rectangular background, the corners thereof being clipped or irregular. The specification states a preference for the employment of a bright red or orange-colored background in connection with the trade-mark design with the figures and lines printed in white. The specification further says that the purpose and object of the peculiarity of the design is to produce a conspicuous effect, securing the greatest possible prominence. The design is usually printed on the labels attached to the ends of the cartons or packages containing complainant's product. This arbitrary and fanciful designation was first appropriated by complainant as a trade-mark for its bakery product, and it is, therefore, entitled to protection from infringement. It quite clearly appears from the evidence that complainant's trade-mark has been extensively advertised⁵⁹ at large expense throughout the United States and in the locality where the defendant carries on his business of selling bakery products, and where the alleged infringing trade-mark is asserted to have been fraudulently used. The defendant is a dismissed employe of the complainant. He was well acquainted with complainant's customers in the territory where the alleged infringements were committed. Soon after his dismissal from complainant's employ, he commenced to divert the trade of complainant by introducing the bakery product of a competitive manufacturer, and finally simulated complainant's trade-mark, as a result of which his sales increased. Defendant's bakery product is manufactured by the Ohio Baking Company, and is put upon the market wrapped up in carton form, sealed at the ends, and having a vivid red rectangular label at each end, clipped at the corners. Upon the seals or square labels is imprinted in distinctive white lines the registered trade-mark of the Ohio Baking Company, above set forth. The labels upon which is printed the infringing device as to color, size, and irregular shape are in similitude of complainant's labels or seals. The configuration of the infringing trade-mark consisting of curved and straight lines, flaring at the ends in resemblance of complainant's lines, is more particularly described in the specification as consisting of three parallel vertical bars and central cross-bar and two circles arranged in the manner shown by the figure itself. Defendant claims that the Ohio Company trade-mark really consists of a fanciful monogram of the word "Ohio," and that he has the right to use it in any size, shape, and color. Prominently appearing in defendant's label are the words "Factory" at the upper end and "Seal" at the lower end. This also would appear to be in simulation of the word "In-er-seal" printed on complainant's device. The packages or cartons of both complainant and defendant have printed matter upon their sides, indicating the character of their contents and the name of the manufacturer. The form of the package and style of type and color of wrapper are concededly the property of the public, as, indeed, are the labels clipped at the corners having a bright red background. No point is made to any similitude of cartons, style, or color of print, nor even of the separate features of complainant's trade-mark. The defendant contended generally on argument that the specifically defined trade-mark of complainant as to its general features and characteristics must be interpreted as limiting its scope to that which is actually described. If this contention means that complainant is restricted to the use of the trade-mark, and has obtained no exclusive right in the collocation of its parts and the distinguishing features by which the trade-mark has become known to the public, such contention is without merit. The gist of the complaint is a violation of a trade-mark, which is composed of a peculiar configuration of lines and a combination of other features. In other words, the distinguishing characteristics of the trade-mark consist in the circles and straight lines in relation to each other, and printed upon the label in white and upon a vivid red background. In the case of Lalance & Grosjean Mfg. Co. v. National Enameling & Stamping Co. (C. C.), 109 Fed. 317—a case of unfair competition—it was held that no one can have a trade-mark monopoly of any color of paper, or any shape of label, or any color of ink, or any one or other detail, yet the general collocation of such details will be protected. The sole question, therefore, is whether the defendant's design for a trade-mark imprinted on a vivid red background in simulation of complainant's design is fairly within complainant's asserted exclusive scope.

That complainant's trade-mark and manner of displaying the same attracts the public attention cannot be successfully disputed. Undoubtedly, complainant's manufactured product has become extensively known to the public solely by its peculiar trade-mark. I have no doubt that an intending purchaser of complainant's product using ordinary care is attracted to the arbitrary trade-mark design, and not to any printed words on the sides of the packages, or even to the nomenclature of the manufacturer of the product. When both designs were exhibited on the hearing, I became well satisfied that defendant's device and manner of applying it in combination with the other features are in imitation of complainant's. Such resemblance tends to deceive an ordinary purchaser giving the usual attention, and causes him to purchase the one believing it to be the other. Although defendant's device and configuration is not in strict resemblance to complainant's yet force is given to the impression which I obtained on the hearing because of the adoption by defendant of a bright red background and a label clipped at the corners of corresponding size to that of complainant. The record discloses that the trade-mark seal of the defendant and the manner of displaying it upon the ends of cartons and packages is likely to deceive the ordinary purchaser into the belief that he was purchasing the product of complainant. By the testimony of defendant's witness Gaiser, a grocer, it appears that an intending purchaser must make a close examination of both packages in order to distinguish defendant's packages and cartons from complainant's. The witness was unable at the hearing, when both packages were exhibited to him, to discover much difference, and was compelled to look for the name of the manufacturer to distinguish the product of complainant from that of defendant. Other evidence was given by complainant upon the hearing showing the similitude of the respective trade-marks to be such as to deceive the public into buying the bakery product of defendant under the impression that they are buying those of complainant. Irrespective, however, of such proof, the trade-mark imprinted upon a bright red-colored label, clipped at the corners, and of corresponding size to complainant's is alone calculated to deceive, and must be regarded as an infringement of complainant's rights secured by its registered trade-mark. Specific proof of purchases by individuals actually deceived under such circumstances appears not to be necessary. Cleveland Stone Co. v. Wallace (C. C.), 52 Fed. 431; National Biscuit Co. v. Baker (C. C.), 95 Fed. 135; Von Mumm v. Frash (C. C.), 56 Fed. 830. In the controversy it is immaterial that the size of cartons, color of wrapper, size and kind of label, and separate features of complainant's trade-mark are old, and may, therefore, be used by any one. The complainant's trade-mark, its features of coloring, rectangular labels, white lines on a vivid background, manner of displaying the arbitrary designation at the ends of the packages, all in combination, are peculiarly distinguishing marks for its goods. I am well satisfied that a technical trade-mark, although not a fac-simile of another, may, nevertheless, be so used by a rival manufacturer as to imitate another's trade-mark, and when such use actually deceives the public a court of equity will afford relief. Scheuer v. Muller, 20 C. C. A. 161, 74 Fed. 225; Draper v. Skerrett (C. C.), 94 Fed. 912. I have examined the case of Richter v. Anchor Remedy Co. (C. C.), 52 Fed. 455, and other cases cited by counsel, but such cases are either not in point or do not disturb the conclusion reached. By the manner of defendant's use of the Ohio Baking Company's trademark he obtains a benefit to which he is not entitled. He appropriates the good will of a rival business by purloining his rival's method of dressing his vendible goods. City of Carlsbad v. Schultz (C. C.), 78 Fed. 471; Sprague Elec. Ry. & Motor Co. v. Nassau Elec. Ry. Co., 37 C. C. A. 286, 95 Fed. 821. As Judge Wanty said when the case against the Ohio Baking Company was before him on application for preliminary injunction, "Why does the defendant use the exact shade of red used by complainant?" Further inquiry is pertinent. Why white letters of substantially the same type? Why labels of uniform size, and with clipped corners? Other questions of like kind may be propounded. The record discloses no satisfactory answer, and therefore it is manifest that the defendant deliberately and fraudulently imitates the trade-mark of complainant, and in that manner designs to palm off his goods for those of complainant.

The complainant may have a decree, with costs, enjoining the defendant from imitating or simulating complainant's "In-er-seal" trade-mark, as set out in this opinion. So ordered.

121 Fed. Rep. 1007.

National Biscuit Company,	} In Equity.
Complainant,
vs.
Isaac F. Whiteside,
Defendant.	No. 10410.

The Demurrer of Isaac F. Whiteside, the defendant above named to the Bill of Complaint of National Biscuit Company, complainant.

This defendant, Isaac F. Whiteside, by protestation, not confessing or acknowledging all or any of the matters and things in the said complainant's bill to be true, in such manner and form as the same are therein set forth and alleged, doth demur thereto and for cause of demurrer sheweth:

1. That the said complainant has not in and by its said bill made or stated any such cause as doth or ought to entitle it to any such discovery or relief as thereby sought and prayed for from or against this defendant.

2. That it does not appear from the facts stated in said bill that the complainant is entitled to the exclusive use of what is designated in said bill as complainant's "In-er-seal" trade-mark.

3. That it does not appear from the allegations of said bill, or from the exhibits therein referred to, that defendant has infringed and is now infringing any exclusive right of complainant in and to the "In-er-seal" mark referred to in the bill of complaint.

4. That it does not appear from the facts stated in the bill of complaint herein that complainant is entitled to the exclusive use of what is herein designated as complainant's "Uneeda" or "Uneeda Biscuit" trade-mark or trade-name.

5. That it does not appear from said bill of complaint, or from the exhibits referred to therein, that defendant has infringed any exclusive right of complainant in the "name Uneeda" or "Uneeda Biscuit."

6. That as to the things designated as "the nine remaining complainant's exhibits," referred to in paragraph sixteen of the bill, it does not appear from said bill—

(a) That the same are described in said bill with sufficient particularity for the defendant to answer in respect to the same;

(b) That it does not appear from said bill that complainant has any exclusive right with respect to any or all of said exhibits;

(c) That it does not appear from said bill, or from the exhibits referred to therein, that defendant has infringed, or is now infringing, any exclusive rights of complainant with respect to any or all of said exhibits.

7. That complainant has not in and by its bill of complaint shown that it is entitled to the sole and exclusive use of the form and arrangement and dress of the package referred to in paragraph "ninth" of the bill of complaint as "Complainant's Exhibit Carton Trade Name Uneeda Biscuit and Wrapper"; nor has complainant shown by its said bill that defendant has infringed, and is now infringing, any exclusive right of complainant in and to the same.

8. That it does not appear from the said bill of complaint that complainant is entitled to the exclusive use of the name "Jersey Butter" as applied to crackers or biscuits; nor does it appear from said bill that defendant has infringed, or that defendant is now infringing, any exclusive right of complainant in the name "Jersey Butter" as applied to crackers or biscuit.

9. That it does not appear from said bill that complainant is entitled to the exclusive use of the figure of a cow stamped or marked on crackers; nor does it appear from the bill that defendant has infringed, or is now infringing, any exclusive right of complainant in respect to the figure of a cow stamped or marked on crackers or biscuit.

10. That it does not appear from the bill of complaint that complainant is entitled to the exclusive use of the word "Crisp" or "Crispy" as applied to crackers or biscuit; nor does it appear from said bill that defendant has infringed, or that defendant is now infringing, any exclusive right of complainant in and to the word "Crisp" or "Crispy" as a mark or name for crackers or biscuit.

11. That as to all of said bill which undertakes to claim infringement by defendant in respect to complainant's alleged cartons or packages referred to therein as "Complainant's Exhibits Cartons Baking Products, Numbers 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11," "Complainant's Exhibit Complainant's Carton Trade Name Uneeda Biscuit and Wrapper," and "Complainant's Exhibit Complainant's In-er-seal trade-mark," complainant is not in equity with clean hands and is not entitled to any equitable relief in this cause, as it appears from said exhibits, which are referred to in the bill and made part thereof by the allegations of the bill, as well as from matters of which this Court will take judicial notice, that as to each of said cartons it distinctly appears that the same (on the outer wrapper thereof) is now being represented by complainant as patented March 28, 1899 (which is the date of the Peters U. S. Patent No. 621,974 relating to cartons). Whereas, as appears from Volume 125 of the Federal Reporter, between pages 601 and 609 thereof (of which this Court will take judicial notice), on the 23rd day of November, 1903, the said Peters Patent for Carton was declared invalid by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, on the ground that the same failed to disclose patentable novelty; and that it appears from the opinion, of the United States Circuit Court in said cause (120 Federal Reporter, between pages 679 and 687), which opinion of the United States Circuit Court was reversed by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit in the case reported in 125 Federal Reporter, supra, that the complainant in this cause, the National Biscuit Company, was, at the time said cause of Peters vs. Union Biscuit Company (reported in the Federal Reporter, volumes 120 and 125, supra) was pending and prior thereto, the exclusive licensee of Peters, the patentee of said patent No. 621,974, of March 28, 1899, so far as said patent might be used for packing bakery products. Therefore, it appears from the said bill of complaint, from complainant's exhibits above referred to, and from matters of which this Court will take judicial notice, that at the time of filing the bill in this cause and since the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, rendered November 23, 1903, in said cause of Union Biscuit Company, appellant vs. Peters, appellee (see 125 Federal Reporter, 601-609), that complainant is still holding out to the public that said exhibit cartons or packages are protected by said Peters' United States letters patent, dated March 28, 1899, whereas, at the time of filing this bill of complaint and said exhibits, and since about one year before the filing of the same, the said Peters' Patent of March 28, 1899, has been adjudged of no force and effect by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth Circuit, which opinion and the decree entered in pursuance of the same is now, and was at the time of filing the bill of complaint herein, in full force and effect, as complainant well knew at the time of filing the bill of complaint herein.

12. That it appears from said bill and the exhibits filed therewith, as well as from matters of which this Court will take judicial notice, that this defendant has not infringed the alleged trade-marks, trade-names or wrappers of complainant, there not being such similarity between the alleged trade-marks, trade-names or wrappers of complainant and those of defendant, as shown by the exhibits filed in connection with complainant's bill, as would deceive an ordinary purchaser using reasonable care so that he would buy the goods of defendant believing them to be the goods of complainant.

13. That complainant has not in and by its said bill stated such a case as doth or ought to entitle it to any equitable relief by way of injunction as against defendant, it not appearing from said bill that at the time of filing the same this defendant was continuing to do the acts of which complaint is made as acts done in the past by this defendant, nor does it appear from said bill that defendant is threatening to do, or about to do, the alleged acts complained of as having been done by the defendant.

14. As to the allegations of fraud in the bill of complaint, they are immaterial, since it appears from the whole bill, and the exhibits filed therewith, notwithstanding the epithets as to fraud used therein, that—

- (a) Complainant has no standing in a court of equity;
- (b) Complainant has no exclusive rights which have been violated by defendant;
- (c) Said allegations of fraud, taken in connection with the bill and exhibits filed therewith, do not connect defendant with any specific acts which make him responsible to complainant in this action.

15. That the bill fails to show such facts in regard to the use by defendant of any package, carton, trade-mark or wrapper as constitute unfair competition in trade on the part of defendant in respect to any article sold by complainant, in that it does not appear from said bill that any article made and sold by defendant has been sold, or is likely to be sold, to any one as and for the goods of the complainant.

16. That as to paragraph "fourteen" of the bill, it does not constitute any cause of action, nor does it constitute any inducement to any cause of action, since it does not appear therefrom that if defendant did employ persons formerly in the employment of complainant, he thereby did an unlawful thing, or anything the doing of which can be taken cognizance of by this Court in this action; it does not appear from the allegations of paragraph "fourteen" of the bill that the said former employees of complainant were not free agents, free to take employment with others when and where they might see fit.

17. Referring to paragraph "twentieth" of the bill of complaint, defendant demurs thereto on the ground that it does not appear from the allegations of the bill in that paragraph or elsewhere that complainant is entitled to the exclusive use of the certain metallic rack or holder therein referred to and marked "Complainant's Exhibit Complainant's Retail Grocer Carton.Exhibit Rack;" nor does it appear from the bill of complaint that defendant has infringed any exclusive rights of the complainant in and to said rack or holder.

18. That notwithstanding the allegations of the bill of complaint herein as to defendant having originally been engaged wholly in the manufacture of bread and afterwards engaged in the manufacture of crackers and biscuit, it does not appear that defendant, by reason of such fact, is liable to the complainant in this suit; since it does not appear from the allegations of the bill of complaint, nor could it be recognized in law as a sound principle if it do appear from the bill of complaint that complainant is entitled to the exclusive monopoly in the manufacture and sale of crackers and biscuit.

19. That as to the allegations contained in "twenty-fifth" and "twenty-sixth" paragraphs of the bill, the same constitute no cause of action, neither do they constitute any inducement to any cause of action, against this defendant, and are mere surplusage, for the following reasons:

(a) The defendant is not shown to be a party, nor is defendant shown to be in privity with any party, to any suit stated or referred to in either of said clauses of the bill;

(b) It appears from said decisions or decrees in all of said cases (if the Court chooses to refer to the same) that the facts in each and all of said cases are utterly and entirely different from the facts in the case presented by the bill in this case;

(c) That the question as to defendant's liability in this action is to be determined by the facts in this case; and, on this demurrer, it clearly appears that complainant has stated no cause of action, no matter whether or not, in other cases against different defendants, under totally different states of facts, complainant has been able to state and establish causes of action.

Wherefore, and for divers other good causes of demurrer appearing in the said bill, this defendant demurs thereto and humbly demands the judgment of this Court whether he shall be compelled to make any further or other answer to the said bill, and prays to be hence dismissed with his costs and charges in this behalf most wrongfully sustained.

STIPULATION.

UNITED STATES CIRCUIT COURT,

DISTRICT OF INDIANA.

National Biscuit Company,	}
Complainant,
vs.
Isaac F. Whiteside,
Defendant.	}

ST. LOUIS, November 9, 1906.

A settlement of the above-entitled case is agreed to between the parties complainant and defendant, as follows:

The original package exhibits and samples of loose crackers referred to in the bill of complaint in this case and made part thereof having been produced for the purpose of inspection by both parties, it is agreed as follows:

That as to Mothers Biscuit package marked "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 1," it is agreed that Defendant shall abandon the use of the red color on the end seal, and instead of the red colored end seal shall use an end seal of yellow.

The color of the wrapper shall be changed from blue to green. A sample of the changed form of carton to be used by the Defendant is hereto attached and marked "Exhibit A."

As to Defendant's Graham Crackers complained of in this suit, which is marked "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 2," and which is provided with a red wrapper, it is agreed that the Defendant shall change the wrapper from red to brown, and substitute a yellow end seal for the red end seal. A sample of the change agreed upon is hereto attached and marked "Exhibit B."

As to Defendant's package of Imperial Toast marked "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 3," Defendant is to abandon the wrapper and the name Imperial Toast.

As to Defendant's Oatmeal Cracker package marked "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 4," which is provided with a green wrapper with red panels and with red end seals, it is agreed that the defendant shall abandon the use of that wrapper as well as the red colored end seals; but nothing in this is to be construed as preventing the Defendant from using the word "oatmeal" in connection with his crackers, or from using the name or phrase "For Goodness Sake," or from using his own name in connection with oatmeal crackers.

As to "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 5" (Kentucky Flakes), it is understood and agreed that the Defendant shall substitute a yellow colored end seal for the red end seal on that exhibit, and change the body color of the wrapper, which in said exhibit is white, from white to a delicate blue color.

As to "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 6," which is Whiteside's Oyster Cracker, and is of a gray or slate color with red colored end seals, it is agreed that Defendant, from and after January 1, 1907, shall change the body color of the said wrapper from a gray to a light blue color, the red end seal for such packages having already been changed by the Defendant from a red color to a yellow color. Except as above stated, the printed matter on the said carton is to be the same as on the said exhibit, should the Defendant desire to use the lettering on that exhibit.

As to "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 7," being for Butter Thin crackers, it is understood and agreed that the Defendant has abandoned that package.

As to "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 8," which is for Whiteside's Butter crackers, it is agreed that from and after this date the Defendant shall not use a red end seal and substitute therefor an end seal of yellow color.

As to "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 9" (Mamma's Ginger Wafers), it is agreed that the Defendant shall change his red end seal to an end seal of yellow color.

As to "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 10" (Whiteside's Milk Biscuit), it is agreed that the defendant shall change his red colored end seal to a yellow colored end seal.

As to "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Carton No. 11" (Whiteside's Cracker Meal package), it is agreed that the defendant shall, on or before January 1, 1907, make the following changes in the carton or wrapper: Change the outer wrapper to a yellow color and substitute new directions and ornamental designs on the said wrapper. It is also understood and agreed that the defendant, as to the last named carton and wrapper, has changed the red end seal to a yellow colored end seal.

As to the separate cracker exhibits in this case, it is agreed that on or before January 1, 1907, the defendant shall take off from said cracker the name "Crispy" and change the form of said cracker from a six-cornered cracker to a three-cornered cracker, and abandon the word "Crispy" in connection with bakery products from and after January 1, 1907.

As to "Complainant's Exhibit, Defendant's Infringing Jersey Butter Cracker," it is agreed that on or before January 1, 1907, the defendant shall take off from that cracker the picture of a cow, and abandon the use of the word "Jersey" in connection with the wrappers, boxes or display cans, or in any way in connection with the manufacture of crackers.

It is also understood and agreed that the exhibits which have been withdrawn by the Complainant and produced here in connection with this settlement, and which are referred to in the bill of complaint, shall be returned to the Court so as to form part of the record in this case.

It is also agreed that from this date on the defendant shall abandon the use of red colored end seals in connection with any bakery products manufactured or sold by the defendant, and that instead of red colored end seals he shall use a yellow colored end seal, or some color distinctly different from red.

It is also agreed that the taxable costs in this suit shall be paid by the defendant.

It is also agreed that in settlement of all claims for profits and damages on account of past infringements alleged in the bill of complaint herein, the defendant has paid to the complainant a sum of money satisfactory to the complainant, receipt of which is hereby acknowledged by the complainant.

It is also agreed that a consent decree for a perpetual injunction, consistent with this settlement, shall go against the defendant in respect to the packages hereinbefore specified, with the understanding that that injunction shall be suspended until January 1, 1907, in respect to certain of the packages specified herein and as fully explained herein; and that, the changes in the packages herein specified being made by the defendant, it shall not be contended by the complainant, at any time, that the packages, so changed as specified herein, are within the scope of any injunction that may be entered in this case in pursuance of this agreement.

Executed in triplicate at St. Louis, Missouri, this 9th day of November, 1906.
